

Hi everyone and welcome to our 1st edition of Divots & Dribble,

We have finally made it through another wet, muddy winter and the course is looking great. A big thanks to those of you who battled the slop religiously each week, but for the fair-weather golfers - It's TIME to come back and join in the weekly competitions. The course has fully recovered from the wet weather and now, can you believe we are back to watering fairways & greens. Our aim will be to keep you updated with the Golf Access weekly winners, information about upcoming events, exclusive special price items and much more.

GOLF JOKE OF THE WEEK

A foursome was on the last hole and when the last golfer drove off the tee he hooked into a cow pasture. He advised his friends to play through and he would meet them at the clubhouse. They followed the plan and waited for their friend.

After a considerable time he appeared disheveled, bloody, and badly beaten up. They all wanted to know what happened.

He explained that he went over to the cow pasture but could not find his ball. He noticed a cow wringing her tail in obvious pain. He went over and lifted her tail and saw a golf ball solidly embedded. It was a yellow ball so he knew it was not his.

A woman comes out of the bushes apparently searching for her lost golf ball. The helpful male golfer lifted the cow's tail and asked, "Does this look like yours"

That was the last thing he could remember.
